HOW ARE ISSUES TYPICALLY ADDRESSED AND RESOLVED IN RESIDENCE?

As a resident, you are encouraged to consider your own role in navigating conflict and considering paths to resolution. When considering next steps, remember Residence Life Staff can help navigate options and assist with finding solutions. In some instances, due to perceived risk or potential for further harm, Residence Life Management may get involved to lead the resolution process.

Confidentiality will remain a priority however information may be shared with the Residence Life Management Team or the Institution to protect the safety of those involved, the community and the Institution.

Some situations are beyond the Residence Community Living Standards and may be referred to the Institution for further review. In this instance, the Residence may work with the Institution to source an outcome, or the Institution may proceed without the Residence.

Outlined below are three (3) options available to you when navigating concerns or conflict;

Option 1: If you have concerns about the behaviour of a fellow Resident, you can address the situation on your own. When addressing it on your own, consider the following:

- a. Choose a time and place when the conversation can take place calmly, privately, and without too much delay from the precipitating incident,
- b. Speak about the impact of the behaviour, focusing on the behaviour and not making a judgment about the person,
- c. Acknowledge the viewpoint of the other person,

d. Work together to find agreement on how to resolve the issue through better mutual understanding, and possibly a different pattern of behaviour in the future.

Option 2: If you have determined you cannot address the situation on your own, you can request the support of a Resident Advisor (RA). When seeking the support of your RA, consider the following:

- a. RAs can help guide you in finding solutions to your concern(s) but are not decision-makers for you,
- b. Connecting with a RA will allow them to evaluate the concerns or incident in question and the current needs of everyone involved. During the conversation, the following should be discussed:
 - i. Any current safety concerns,
 - ii. The impact of the situation on your ability to engage in things like academic studies and residence community events,
 - iii. How you have responded to the situation so far,
 - iv. Stresses that may be adding to the situation,
 - v. Other relevant information and the importance of privacy,
 - vi. Any thoughts about what you need to resolve the situation.
- c. Following the conversation with the RA, they will review your options with you. You may choose to resolve the matter on your own or agree on another way to resolve your concerns.

Option 3: If after attempting to resolve the concerns or incident on your own, and/or after working with a RA, Residence Life Management may get involved and work with everyone involved to lead a resolution process. It is important to note any situation that involves safety and risk concerns and/or complex behaviours may bypass option 1 and 2 as they would not be appropriate, timely, or reasonable to take.

COMPLEX BEHAVIOUR & LIMITS OF SUPPORT

The safety, health, and well-being of our Residence Community is our priority. However, Residence is not intended to serve as a medical or therapeutic environment. In cases where additional resources beyond the Residence support are needed, we will assess if continuing to live in Residence is possible, while continuing to offer referrals to campus and/or community support services as needed.

Complex behavior refers to actions that, while not violating Residence Community Living Standards, are complicated by significant factors that may negatively impact or threaten the well-being of a resident or the community.

WHAT IF I RECEIVE A REQUEST FOR A MEETING?

If you receive a request to meet with a staff member it is because we want to better understand what happened during a recent conflict in Residence. We encourage you to attend, or to reschedule it so we can better understand what's happening and the impact it has had on you. Depending upon the incident, Residence Life Staff may meet with other people involved to understand the totality of the incident. As a result, some incidents will require more time than others to review and reach a resolution.

WHAT HAPPENS WHEN WE MEET?

A meeting with Residence Life Staff is typically used to discuss what happened, to find the facts, to review information, and talk about how to move forward and restore the community setting. We meet with all participants involved, including witnesses if relevant and appropriate, to help us decide if anyone was harmed or a policy was breached. During the meeting we will also explain how confidentiality applies to those involved.

WHO WILL I MEET WITH?

In most instances, you will meet with a Residence Life Coordinator to discuss the impact of the situation, and if you feel you have any role or responsibility in what happened. Depending on the significance of the situation, others may be present including a manager or representative from the Institution. In either case, you will be notified of whom will be attending your meeting and be offered the option to bring a support person with you to attend as an observer.

WHAT HAPPENS IF I PLAYED A ROLE IN AN INCIDENT AND AM RESPONSIBLE?

We encourage you to approach these situations with honesty and integrity. We will support you in taking responsibility, learning from the incident, and repairing any harm caused. Our staff will collaborate with you to create a plan that addresses the harm and helps rebuild relationships with those affected, whether individuals or the community.

WHAT IF I DON'T THINK I AM RESPONSIBLE FOR ANYTHING?

After reviewing the information available, the Residence Life Staff will make a decision based on the balance of probabilities. This means the staff responsible for making a decision on whether a policy was breached or not, will evaluate if the incident is more likely than not to have occurred. If the staff decide that a policy breach has taken place, they will determine what outcomes (consequences) are appropriate to repair the harms or situation and restore the community. Our hope is you will learn from your choices, work to repair any negative impact, and rebuild trust in the community. In order to accomplish these goals, one or more of the outcomes listed in "Potential Outcomes" may be used. The types of outcomes discussed with you will shift if you continue to be involved in multiple incidents throughout the year.

LOSS OF PRIVILEGES

Specific privileges may be suspended or revoked for a given time period (i.e. access to lounges, hosting a guest). A loss of privilege may also be associated

DOCUMENTATION

Whenever a member of the Residence Life Staff is approached to support a conflict or has identified a concerning behaviour, a written report is submitted to Residence Life Management. Reports are most often a brief written record called an Incident Report (IR).

INCIDENT REPORT

An Incident Report (IR) is a type of documentation used by Residence Life Staff when an alleged violation of the RCLS occurs. When the RCLS is suspected to be violated, Residence Life Staff will document the facts in an IR and connect with you to schedule a meeting to discuss. An IR typically will include:

- a. A description of the incident(s),
- b. An overview of the timeline from the precipitating incident to the conclusion of the process,
- c. A description of any outcomes,

While confidentiality and your privacy are of top concern, other documents such as video surveillance, door access logs, and public social media posts may be included as part of the information gathering process.

WHY YOUR OPINION MATTERS

It is important you have the opportunity to have a voice in the conduct process and feel heard. We encourage all students to attend meetings about their behaviour. However, if you choose not to share your perspective then a decision will be made about your involvement and potential outcomes without your input.

INTERIM MEASURES

When a situation raises concerns about the health and safety of an individual or the community, temporary actions may be taken as an interim solution. These measures can be implemented at any stage of the fact-finding and adjudication process but do not imply a determination of any policy violation. Residence staff may periodically review these measures to ensure they remain necessary and fit the specific circumstances.

APPEALS

If you have been found in violation of the Residence Community Living Standards, and you disagree with the finding, you have the right to appeal. Your appeal must be submitted within five (5) business days of receiving the decision letter. Appeals must be based on the appeal grounds noted below and include an appeal statement and original outcome letter/agreement when submitted.

Bias: You think the outcome is unreasonable given the behaviour involved;

Procedural Fairness: You think the Decision-maker did not comply with the Principles of Natural Justice and Procedural Fairness, which may have affected the decision;

New information: You have new information that was unavailable at the time of the original decision.

Once submitted, the appeal will go to the Residence Life Manager, Coordinator or Designate for review who will determine whether you have provided sufficient information based on the grounds above. The Manager/ Coordinator or Designate may request to meet with you so they can gather more information. If your appeal moves forward, it will then be heard by member(s) of the Residence Life Management Team who will decide the outcome of the appeal. Further information about the appeal process is available on the Residence website.
